

Ohio Lawmakers Open 25th Week Of Legislative Talks

COLUMBUS, June 20—Ohio's lawmakers begin their 25th week of legislative sessions tonight—on the date when the house of representatives had hoped to go home for keeps.

With the $646 million general appropriations bill still to clear the senate, the $60 million additions and betterments bill still to clear both houses, and the sundry claims bill, not even introduced as yet, the solons have a long way to go before they can call it quits.

Nonetheless, back on May 16, the house optimistically passed a joint resolution setting June 10 as the final working day and today as the date for sine die or final adjournment.

The senate, in a pessimistic mood and rightly so, shunted the resolution to its rules committee—and there it reposes today.

The senate finance committee will begin hearings this week on the general appropriations bill, passed last Tuesday by the house by a 104-11 margin.

However, Sen. Clingan Jackson (D-Youngstown), committee chairman who has been feuding not too privately with Gov. Frank Lausche on fiscal matters, has stated that he will not be hurried in his consideration of the measure.

Jackson, who wants to increase state aid to schools and local governments by sizeable amounts despite the pledge of Governor Lausche and the Democratic Party platform of no new taxes, has stated that he would introduce another temporary, stop-gap money bill if necessary to tide the state over in July and August.

Present appropriations expire June 30. After that date no more money can be spent until some sort of a new money bill is passed.

If the senate dilly-dallies too long with the appropriations measure, it will make this session the longest regular meeting of recent years. Even now it can only get under the length of one recent body—the 1945 session which dragged on to July 19.

The house finance committee hopes to wind up hearings this week on the additions and betterments bill, although they could drag over until next week.

House members take the position there is no use hurrying the measure until the senate committee is ready to receive it—in other words, until the senate group disposes of the appropriations bill.

The senate tonight votes on the Boyd bill to require separate liquor permits when the same owner operates more than two bars in one location, and on a bill to require written reports of all auto accidents.

The house will take up a senate-approved measure to permit child actors on Ohio theatre stages despite the child labor laws. Tomorrow, as a special order of business, the house will vote on a bill to force counties to appraise real estate at a fair value in comparison to the values in other counties.

The bill, postponed from last Thursday, would permit the state board of tax appeals to withhold up to 50 percent of all state subsidies from counties which under-appraise real property.

On Wednesday, the senate taxation committee will probably act on a compromise bill to settle the dispute over the classification of real or personal property.

The dispute arose when the Ohio supreme court ruled that certain special-use structures, such as brick and pottery kilns, refineries, and blast furnaces, were personal property and not real estate.

$2.8 Billion Due In Payoff On Insurance

VA Says 16 Million Ex-GIs To Share In Lush Dividends

WASHINGTON, June 20—Veterans Administrator Carl R. Gray Jr. today authorized payment of a $2.8 billion special National Service Life Insurance dividend on approximately 20 million policies.

Gray said that about 16 million veterans who took out insurance during World War II will be eligible to receive the dividend.

Amounts individual veterans will get are not yet known as individual calculations have not been completed.

Gray told a news conference that he "hoped distribution of the checks could be started sometime in January, 1950, and be substantially completed during the first half of 1950."

THE ADMINISTRATOR indicated that generally, every veteran who took out the insurance and kept it in force for three months or more will be eligible for the dividend.

In cases where policy holders have died, the beneficiary of the policy, if the insurance was in force, or to those shown to be entitled in case the insurance was lapsed, will receive the payment.

Gray strongly emphasized that veterans should not write VA about their dividend because letters will cause the payment to be delayed.

He said special application blanks are now being prepared and it is hoped they can be printed in time to be available sometime in August in postoffices, veterans service organizations and VA offices.

National Service Life Insurance was created by the 76th Congress and approved Oct. 8, 1940.

NEARLY 20 million policies were issued to more than 16.5 million servicemen, some veterans having two or more policies. There currently are seven million 215 thousand in force, with a face value of 41 billion 552 million dollars.

Cutoff date for payment of the dividend is the anniversary date of the policy during 1948. The special dividend will not be paid on policies issued after Jan. 1, 1949, though such policies may participate in some later dividend distribution, Gray said.

This Heat Spell To Last Several Days Yet, Claim

A broiling sun and sizzling heat combined Monday to push the mercury up toward new high marks for the year.

Temperatures in the 90s were common throughout the state yesterday with Chesapeake recording a torrid 94, Zanesville hitting 93 and Circleville chalking up 92.

Cleveland's 90 fell one degree short of the record for the date set in 1931.

Forecasters said similar readings can be expected for the next few days with no end to the heat spell in sight.

"Some scattered thunderstorms may hit here and there Monday," the weatherman continued, "but we expect the rainfall to be very lean and to hit at few spots. The same holds for Tuesday."

Observers said the lack of wind will accentuate the heat, although the humidity will not be excessive.

The rainfall pattern in the state so far this month has been very spotty, observers pointed out. Circleville has had considerable rain, as have several other points, while some places like Cleveland are suffering from a severe rain shortage.

First Tomato?

Tom Boyer of 504 South Court street claims to have picked the first ripe garden tomato in Pickaway County this season. The tomato was picked Monday from one of the 8,000 tomato plants in his garden on the Howard Thomas farm two and one half miles west of Circleville.

ARRESTED for failure to support his two children by a former marriage, Francis H. Pencovic, 38, self-termed Messiah, is shown in the Los Angeles County jail shortly before he was released on bail. Pencovic claims following of 145,000 in Reseda, Calif., although Chamber of Commerce lists town's population at 5,000 persons.

Red Martin Pleads Innocent To Murder Rap

Cecil (Red) Martin pleaded innocent Monday to first degree murder in the death of his drinking companion, Theodore B. White, whose beaten body was found in a shallow grave near Ashville.

Martin's hearing was continued until June 30 in Columbus in Judge John M. Matthias' municipal court. He is held without bond.

The 33-year-old native of Millport was apprehended last week while driving on the outskirts of Columbus in the dead man's car. He was in the company of a waitress.

White, a 58-year-old truck driver, was found lying in about a foot of sand along the banks of Little Walnut Creek south of Ashville. His skull had been fractured and paper towels were stuffed down his throat.

The well-dressed body, partly decomposed, had lain in the sandy bank for over a week before it was found by a party of teen-aged swimmers from Ashville.

75 Youngsters Signed At Park

About 75 youngsters were signed up Monday morning in the initial registration for the supervised play program to be staged in Ted Lewis Park during the summer.

Richard West, head of the program, and his assistant, Virginia Metier, said that about two-thirds of the registrations so far have been boys.

As soon as sufficient numbers of both boys and girls are signed, the special Kiwanis-sponsored program will get underway.

UnAmerican Panel Demand Upheld

WASHINGTON, June 20—The U. S. court of appeals ruled today that the House UnAmerican Activities has the right to demand the private records of organizations it has under investigation.

The court's ruling upheld the contempt of Congress conviction of George Marshall, who as chairman of the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties refused in January, 1946, to turn over the federation's records to the committee.

Mac Told Soviets To Return Japs

Yank Commander Says Russia Far Behind In Repatriation

TOKYO, June 20—Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today Russia has declared its intention to resume returning Japanese war prisoners to their homeland.

The Allied supreme commander caustically pointed out, however, that the Soviets are far behind the schedule laid down in a repatriation agreement.

A special statement from MacArthur's headquarters said: "Gen. MacArthur announces the receipt of a letter from the Soviet member of the Allied Council (for Japan) indicating that the Soviets will lift their prolonged six-month suspension of Japanese repatriations, effective June 25th."

"The Supreme Commander for the Allied Powers (SCAP) is prepared to immediately receive the repatriates from any Asiatic ports designated by the Soviets."

"REPEATED SCAP offers made in the past to furnish repatriation shipping and other facilities to the Soviets to accomplish the return of Japanese prisoners of war at rates far in excess of the 50,000 monthly quota are again recalled."

"The Soviets have not met the quota to which they subscribed in the SCAP-Soviet agreement. With this resumption, their monthly repatriation average as of May 31, 1949, stands at the all-time low of 30,570."

First announcement of the forthcoming resumption of repatriations from Soviet areas was made by Japan's welfare ministry.

The ministry said the renewed operations of shipping the prisoners home will begin next Saturday.

The announcement was confirmed at MacArthur's headquarters through which Russia notified the Japanese government of its intention.

The Russians advised Tokyo that Japanese repatriation ships will be received at the Soviet Asiatic port of Nahodka June 25, 27, 29 and 30; and at Maoko on June 28. Each ship is expected to bring 2,000 Japanese back home.

Moscow had declared last month it would shortly resume repatriations and had claimed there were only 95,000 Japanese prisoners of war "remaining" in Soviet custody.

MacArthur's headquarters blasted this assertion and insisted there were some 400,000 Japanese still unaccounted for in Russian areas.

Germany-Austria Statement Readied

PARIS, June 20—The Big Four Council of Foreign Ministers wound up its month-long deliberations on Germany and Austria today, reaching what authoritative sources said was an agreement on all major issues.

The accord was reached in a secret session lasting only 40 minutes and will be made public tonight. It reportedly makes the blockade-lifting in Berlin "effective and permanent."

Well-informed sources said the Soviets made far-reaching concessions on Austria, including recognition of Austrian law as governing Soviet-operated properties, eliminating the danger of Russian expropriation.

Deputies are being instructed to complete drafting a peace treaty for Austria by Sept. 1. They will meet in London on June 30 for this purpose.

A HIGHLY authoritative source said that tonight's communique will consist of seven or eight typewritten pages, divided into two parts—Germany and Austria.

This source described the German part as a "limited accord" covering inter-zonal communications and trade.

The Austrian section was described as "much broader and more precise."

The communique envisages another Big Four meeting without setting a date.

Cincy Scientist To Be Buried

CINCINNATI, June 20—Funeral services were to be held here today for Dr. Samuel Elgart, 38, prominent research specialist in radioactive isotopes as weapons against disease.

Dr. Elgart, who returned to Cincinnati only recently from Oak Ridge, Tenn., where he conducted experiments with the mysterious tracers, or isotopes, died Saturday night of a heart ailment.

He had planned to set up a laboratory to continue his experiments in Cincinnati Jewish hospital, where he was a staff member.

Nationwide Hunt Started For Noted 'Love Pirate'

CHICAGO, June 20—A 48-state alarm for a 73-year-old notorious "love pirate" was intensified today with his identification through a photograph of two teen age daughters of a missing Chicago widow.

He is Sigmund Z. Engel, known a quarter of a century ago in Vaudeville as Sigmund Rennee, adept at charming rich, lonely and trustful women by posing as movie producer, banker and even Lord Beaverbrook of England.

Police described the elderly man as a "matrimonial swindler deluxe" and said his suave romantic ways aided him for more than 25 years in duping countless women into marriage and swindling them of inheritances, jewels and furs.

The two daughters of Mrs. Reseda Corrigan, 39, missing Chicago widow, identified Engel through a Milwaukee police photograph. They said the dapper Romeo swindled their mother of $5,000 on promises of marriage. Engel was identified by the two sisters, Reseda, 19, and Orpha, 17.

MILWAUKEE police records listed the confidence man as having used 28 aliases.

New York authorities reported that Engel arrived in Manhattan last June 6, the day after he fled Chicago, and began to court Mrs. Pauline Langton, New York divorcee.

He wooed her and lined her for a week and then flew with her to Arlington, Va., last Tuesday where they were married.

The self-styled movie magnate, posing as Carl Laemmle Jr., obtained some $14,300 in jewels from Mrs. Langton last Friday and disappeared while allegedly taking them to an insurance broker.

He had a police record in Berkeley. (Continued on Page Two)

Berliners Renew Marks Demand

BERLIN, June 20—A crowd of 1,000 Western Berlin workers stormed City Hall here today to demand conversion of their Soviet zone pay into Western marks, which are pegged at four times the Red value.

Most of the workers were craftsmen who live in the western sector but work in the eastern area and thus receive Soviet-issued currency.

The mob broke through hurriedly-formed police lines in an effort to reach the office of Mayor Ernest Reuter. They finally were turned back after 12 were arrested.

New Welfare Cabinet Job Is Urged

2 More Changes Being Proposed

WASHINGTON, June 20—President Truman sent to Congress today seven government reorganization plans including a proposal for a new welfare department to be headed by a cabinet member.

The President acted immediately after signing legislation authorizing him to submit government streamlining legislation recommended by the Hoover Commission.

House Speaker Rayburn, (D) Tex., said after a conference with the President and Democratic congressional leaders that two more reorganization plans will be submitted by the White House.

Under the act signed today, the President's proposals will become effective in 60 days unless rejected by a constitutional majority of either the House or Senate. In the Senate, a constitutional majority is 49. A similar majority in the House is 218.

ADMINISTRATION sources on Capitol Hill said that under their interpretation of the new reorganization act, Congress must remain in session for 60 calendar days in order for the plans to become effective. Should Congress adjourn before that time—Aug. 19—they said it may be necessary for the President to resubmit his plans to the next session.

Among the plans submitted by Mr. Truman is one bringing the National Security Council and the National Security Resources Board directly under White House authority.

Another would reorganize the Postoffice Department by creating a new post of deputy (Continued on Page Two)

Potomac Lowland People Dig Out After Floods

PETERSBURG, W. Va., June 20—Dazed, tired residents of the lowlands along the south branch of the Potomac River began digging out today from the damage wrought by flood waters in the Eastern West Virginia panhandle.

There were three known dead in the Petersburg area and five were listed as missing. State police estimated a possible six additional dead and 14 missing in West Virginia and Virginia.

Many water supplies were polluted, particularly in Petersburg where National Guard and Red Cross units administered typhoid injections.

Farther southeast in Virginia, the towns of Bridgewater and Harrisonburg were hard hit by debris and the Bridgewater sewerage system was seriously affected.

Damage estimate for the Potomac south branch area was $1.5 million. Around Petersburg and Romney, thousands of chickens, as well as livestock and buildings were destroyed by the rampaging flash flood waters which struck Saturday.

Hundreds were made homeless by the flood which resulted from more than 4-1/2 inches of rain in a 24-hour period.

Pope Outlaws Czech Group

ROME, June 20—Pope Pius XII excommunicated today all members of the Czechoslovak "Catholic Action" group which seeks to place the Catholic church under control of the Communist-led state.

Activities of the group have been opposed bitterly by Archbishop Josef Beran of Prague, whose efforts to deliver a sermon protesting its moves were balked by Communist hecklers in Prague yesterday.

The excommunication was similar to the decree issued several months ago when the pope outlawed all persons involved in any manner in the arrest, trial and conviction of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty in Budapest.

About 100 persons turned out Sunday for a special picnic with Pickaway County children's Home youngsters as special guests.

The picnic, held at the Rock House in the Hocking Hills, was a spontaneous affair headed by Don Jenkins of Circleville. Only one public announcement was made. That asked families to prepare a picnic lunch and allow enough extra for one youngster from the home.

Jenkins said "all appetites were satisfied and there were plenty of sandwiches and water-melons left over."

Potomac Lowland People Dig Out After Floods

PETERSBURG, W. Va., June 20—Dazed, tired residents of the lowlands along the south branch of the Potomac River began digging out today from the damage wrought by flood waters in the Eastern West Virginia panhandle.

There were three known dead in the Petersburg area and five were listed as missing. State police estimated a possible six additional dead and 14 missing in West Virginia and Virginia.

Many water supplies were polluted, particularly in Petersburg where National Guard and Red Cross units administered typhoid injections.

Farther southeast in Virginia, the towns of Bridgewater and Harrisonburg were hard hit by debris and the Bridgewater sewerage system was seriously affected.

Damage estimate for the Potomac south branch area was $1.5 million. Around Petersburg and Romney, thousands of chickens, as well as livestock and buildings were destroyed by the rampaging flash flood waters which struck Saturday.

Hundreds were made homeless by the flood which resulted from more than 4½ inches of rain in a 24-hour period.

New Welfare Cabinet Job Is Urged

The chief executive warned Congress that a reduction in government spending will not be "automatically" produced by adoption of the reorganization plans. He said:

"Only the curtailment of government programs can be expected to result in substantial savings."

MR. TRUMAN pointed out, however, that adoption of the plans he propose "will make it possible to work out improvements in administration which will increase efficiency and reduce expenditures over a period of time."

Mr. Truman's seven reorganization proposals were:

1. Creation of a department of welfare under a secretary of welfare to perform the functions now administered by the Federal Security Agency.
2. Transfer of the Bureau of Employment Security, now in the Federal Security Agency, to the Labor Department.
3. Reorganization of the Post-office Department with creation of a new post of deputy postmaster general and four assistant postmasters general of equivalent rank to the undersecretaries and assistant secretaries of other departments.
4. Transfer of the National Security Council and the National Security Resources Board to the executive office of the President, placing these two highly-important defense mechanisms directly under White House authority.
5. Provide for unified direction by the chairman of the Civil Service Commission of the executive affairs of the commission. The bipartisan three-member commission remains in effect.
6. Strengthen the administration of the Maritime Commission by making the chairman the chief executive and administrative officer of the commission.
7. Transfer the Public Roads Administration to the Department of Commerce.

Catholic Women Holding Parley

CLEVELAND, June 20—More than 500 members of the Catholic Ladies of Columbia from Ohio, Michigan, Indiana and Kentucky came here today for their triennial convention.

The members were to go to Jefferson today to unveil a monument to Mary Elizabeth Smalley, a founder and first supreme president of the charitable and fraternal order.

Auxiliary Bishop Floyd L. Beagin of the Cleveland diocese will address tomorrow night's banquet. Bishop Edward F. Hoban of the Cleveland diocese, Gov. and Mrs. Frank J. Lausche and Mayor and Mrs. Thomas A. Burke are expected to attend.

omists recommended to President Truman's Council of Economic Advisers a program of agricultural and industrial reforms to boost the South to economic equality with the rest of the nation.

DR. CALVIN B. Hoover and Dr. B. U. Ratchford, economists of the National Planning Association, based their report on assumptions that the South needs more industry with higher output per worker, fewer small and more medium-sized farms employing fewer people and greater crop diversification.

They suggested a program of "compensatory payments" to farmers which, they said, would support incomes and also allow farm commodity prices to move freely.

The government would guarantee to support all commodities at 85 percent of the normal market price and farmers would receive direct treasury payments whenever the price fell below this point.

3 New Permits Are Granted To Builders Here

Three more building permits have been granted to Circleville residents by the city planning commission.

Robert Carpenter was granted permission to remodel a home on Half avenue; Mrs. Anne L. Owens to build a single story structure on Watt street; and H. E. Anderson to build a home on Collins street, according to Miss Lillian Young, city auditor.

Leslie D. May, chairman of the planning commission, said Monday that work is still going ahead on preparing a zoning ordinance to be presented to city council for approval.

At present, May said, the commission has only a rough draft of the ordinance prepared.

"There are a lot of bugs to be ironed out yet," he said.

Fines, Sentences In Fight Case Are Suspended

Two Circleville men were each fined $25 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in Pickaway County jail by Justice of the Peace Oscar Root over the weekend.

The fines and sentences were suspended.

Assault and battery charges were filed against Carl Olney, 22, and Carl Bevins, 21, following a fight in a cafe on U. S. Route 23. The pair was arrested by Pickaway County sheriff's deputies.

Justice Root also levied a fine of $15 and costs against Warren H. Hafey, 47, of Columbus. He was accused by Game Protector Edward J. Baker of hunting without a license.

Home, Mt. Sterling. Burial will be in Mt. Sterling cemetery.

HANNAH SMYTH

Hannah Smyth, sister to Cornelius Smith of 219 West Mill street, Circleville, died Sunday in her home in Pleasant Ridge, Cincinnati.

In addition to the brother, she is survived by one other brother, Thomas Smyth of Cincinnati, and two nieces, Mrs. Don Eitel, with whom Mr. Cornelius Smyth makes his home here, and Mrs. John Laughlin of East Main street.

Requiem high mass will be sung in St. Coleman's church, Washington C. H., at 9:30 a. m. Tuesday.

Growing demands for electric power in the United States will require utilities to increase their generating facilities by 75 per cent during the next year, it is estimated.

Iron Curtain Purges Seen

Trouble Brewing In Red Orbit?

LONDON, June 20—Diplomatic observers in London said today increasingly frequent reports of purges and prosecutions from every Soviet satellite country indicate "trouble behind the Iron Curtain."

Russia is believed in some quarters to be tightening her economic and political reins on Eastern Europe before the apparently inevitable day when she must withdraw her troops.

Other observers, however, believe that reports from Albania, Hungary, Bulgaria, Romania, Poland and Czechoslovakia clearly show that suspicion of deviations from the Moscow line is behind the political changes and firings.

The recent meeting of the Cominform in Wroclaw, Poland, was expected to bring new pressure on the rebel Communist leader, Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia.

THE COMINFORM apparently also decided, however, to strengthen Communist power in those countries still loyal to Moscow to prevent a recurrence of Titoism.

Laszlo Rajk, former Hungarian minister of the interior, was the first to feel the impact. He was fired last week and now has been named as an "American spy." Rajk, a veteran of the European Communist movement, apparently failed to maintain control of the vital ministry.

Albanian Vice-Premier Koci Djodje, also once considered a staunch Communist, was executed last week by the Communist government, on charges of collaboration with Tito.

Diplomatic reports reaching London said that trouble is expected soon in Romania. Ana Pauker, probably the world's most highly placed woman Communist, is foreign minister of Romania and virtual boss.

But reports to London said that Madame Pauker, Vice-Premier Gheorghe Gheorghiu-Dej, who is also secretary general of the Romanian Communist Party, and Interior Minister Teohari Georgescu, may come under fire soon.

Robert Carpenter was granted permission to remodel a home on Half avenue; Mrs. Anne L. Owens to build a single story structure on Watt street; and H. E. Anderson to build a home on Collins street, according to Miss Lillian Young, city auditor.

Leslie D. May, chairman of the planning commission, said Monday that work is still going ahead on preparing a zoning ordinance to be presented to city council for approval.

At present, May said, the commission has only a rough draft of the ordinance prepared.

"There are a lot of bugs to be ironed out yet," he said.

UNITED STATES, June 20—The U. S. Supreme Court today held unconstitutional an Ohio tax against notes, accounts receivable and other intangible property owned by out-of-state corporations.

The court's 7-2 decision was announced by Justice Jackson. He based his majority opinion on the ground that the tax denied the out-of-state companies involved in the case—Wheeling Steel Corp. and National Distillers—of equal protection under the constitution.

WASHINGTON, June 20—Thousands of miners across the nation returned to the pits early today after a one-week "stabilizing holiday."

United Mine Workers officials reported that about 450,000 members heeded the request of UMW President John L. Lewis who told the men to return for a week's work before their annual ten-day vacation begins next Saturday.

Lewis this week has three conferences scheduled with separate groups of coal operators.

Suspect Held In Slayings

LOS ANGELES, June 20—Police arrested and began questioning today a 26-year-old resident of a Hollywood hotel in the sex-slaying of Mrs. Louise Springer, victim of Los Angeles latest "Black Dahlia" type of murder. He was identified as Claude R. Cox, 26.

Police said he was arrested early this morning. The hotel in which Cox lives is believed to be one in which the "Black Dahlia"—Elizabeth Short—also lived at one time.

Fines, Sentences In Fight Case Are Suspended

Two Circleville men were each fined $25 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in Pickaway County jail by Justice of the Peace Oscar Root over the weekend.

The fines and sentences were suspended.

Assault and battery charges were filed against Carl Olney, 22, and Carl Bevins, 21, following a fight in a cafe on U. S. Route 23. The pair was arrested by Pickaway County sheriff's deputies.

Justice Root also levied a fine of $15 and costs against Warren H. Hafey, 47, of Columbus. He was accused by Game Protector Edward J. Baker of hunting without a license.

Home, Mt. Sterling. Burial will be in Mt. Sterling cemetery.

HANNAH SMYTH

Hannah Smyth, sister to Cornelius Smyth of 219 West Mill street, Circleville, died Sunday in her home in Pleasant Ridge, Cincinnati.

In addition to the brother, she is survived by one other brother, Thomas Smyth of Cincinnati, and two nieces, Mrs. Don Eitel, with whom Mr. Cornelius Smyth makes his home here, and Mrs. John Laughlin of East Main street.

Requiem high mass will be sung in St. Coleman's church, Washington C. H., at 9:30 a. m. Tuesday.

Growing demands for electric power in the United States will require utilities to increase their generating facilities by 75 percent during the next year, it is estimated.

Iron Curtain Purges Seen

Trouble Brewing In Red Orbit?

LONDON, June 20—Diplomatic observers in London said today increasingly frequent reports of purges and prosecutions from every Soviet satellite country indicate "trouble behind the Iron Curtain."

Russia is believed in some quarters to be tightening her economic and political reins on Eastern Europe before the apparently inevitable day when she must withdraw her troops.

Other observers, however, believe that reports from Albania, Hungary, Bulgaria, Romania, Poland and Czechoslovakia clearly show that suspicion of deviations from the Moscow line is behind the political changes and firings.

The recent meeting of the Cominform in Wrocław, Poland, was expected to bring new pressure on the rebel Communist leader, Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia.

THE COMINFORM apparently also decided, however, to strengthen Communist power in those countries still loyal to Moscow to prevent a recurrence of Titoism.

Laszlo Rajk, former Hungarian minister of the interior, was the first to feel the impact. He was fired last week and now has been named as an "American spy." Rajk, a veteran of the European Communist movement, apparently failed to maintain control of the vital ministry.

Albanian Vice-Premier Koci Dajdji, also once considered a staunch Communist, was executed last week by the Communist government, on charges of collaboration with Tito.

Diplomatic reports reaching London said that trouble is expected soon in Romania. Ana Pauker, probably the world's most highly placed woman Communist, is foreign minister of Romania and virtual boss.

But reports to London said that Madame Pauker, Vice-Premier Gheorghe Gheorghiu-Dej, who is also secretary general of the Romanian Communist Party, and Interior Minister Teohari Georgescu, may come under fire soon.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By BILLY ROSE

A few blocks away from where I live and let live on the East River Drive they're digging a big hole, and eventually—Allah and the atom willing—what they're digging will become the diggings of the United Nations.

Now, as everybody knows, there are two kinds of people in the world—those who dig holes and those who stand around watching them.

The latter are known to the trade as sidewalk superintendents, and the most interesting of the peepingtometers in my neighborhood is an old boy named Charlie Grainger.

It was a sunny afternoon a few weeks back when Mr. Grainger took up the station next to mine on the rim of the excavation, and I couldn't help but notice his Herbert Hoover neckband and high button shoes.

"That's a pretty sizeable hunk of hole," said Mr. Grainger by way of openers, signaling to the steam shovel to move a little to the left. "They got plenty of nothing down there and it's getting bigger all the time."

"Kee-rect," was my neighborly comeback.

"MY BOY," Mr. Grainger continued, "the world's got one gosh-awfully throb of a toothache, and you're looking at the cavity. As I see it, it's going to take a heap of international dentistry to plug it up right and proper."

Then, there and on the spot, I decided that my construction-casing colleague was an hombre worth knowing.

"How come you aren't producing any shows this year?" he asked me the other day when we both reported for work at the usual hour. "Does it get in the way of your duties down here?"

"That's part of it," I said, "but the chief reason is the depression I see creeping up on us. It's my theory that when people are worried about bread, they won't lay it on the line for circuses."

"Son," said Mr. Grainger, "you've got a good head on your shoulders, and here's a little story that proves it."

"For the last 20 years, a friend of mine in Indiana has been selling hamburgers and making a right pretty dollar at it. He's hard of hearing, so he never listens to the radio, and he's had so much trouble with his eyes that he never looks at a newspaper. But the hamburgers he sells are good hamburgers, and so his inability to keep up with the times has never interfered with his business."

"A FEW WEEKS back, the old man's son got out of college after majoring in economics, and when he got home he said, 'Pop, I think you ought to start watching your pennies. The European situation is all messed up and we're beginning to feel it over here. According to the Dow-Jones index, this country is facing a big depression.'"

"I don't know this Dow Jones," said his father, "but any friend of yours is a friend of mine. Besides, you figure to know what you're talking about, seeing as how you've been hanging out with professors for the past four years."

"The next morning, the old man canceled the billboards on which he had been advertising his roadside stand for years, and that night switched off his neon sign at 8 o'clock. And a week later, he laid off most of the girls who had been carrying the trays out to the cars."

"Encouraged by these savings, he next eliminated his famous piccalilli sauce, stopped throwing the stale buns away, and substituted cheap meat for the U. S. Prime he had always used. His only capital investment was for a newfangled gadget, guaranteed to get 20 slices out of an onion."

"Well, last week his son's predictions had all come true. In fact, there was one day when not a single car drove up to the stand."

"Thanks for tipping me off," said the old man to his son that evening. "There sure is one helluva depression in this country."

Fined $10 each for passing in non-passing zones on U. S. Route 23 were Charlie Arnett of Columbus and Fred Foster, McClain.

Another $10 fine was levied against Reginald S. Clemons of Roanoke, Va. He was accused by police of following a tractor-trailer outfit too close to permit a passing vehicle to enter the space between.

5 Are Injured As Racer Upsets

COLUMBUS, June 20 — Three persons were in a Columbus hospital today and two others were nursing wounds suffered when a racing car crashed through a guard rail and wire fence and rolled over among spectators at Powell Speedway.

A 13-month-old baby, Floyd Oscar Lawham, was in the arms of his grandfather, Oscar Howard, 45, of Sunbury. Both were hospitalized for head and face cuts.

The driver, Don Wagstaff, 36, of Akron, was bruised, and two other spectators, Clarence D. Roush, of Columbus, and Harry Chisty, of Galena, suffered cuts.

Trade Magazine Says Steel Is Used Heavily

CLEVELAND, June 20 — Steel Magazine said today that although the volume of business of most metalworking industries is down sharply from postwar peaks, steel continues to be consumed in heavy volume.

The national metalworking trade publication stated that steel output currently is about 50 percent above the monthly average of 1937-39 and about equal to 1941 production.

"There is no question steel buyers are eating into inventories and will be forced to return to the market before too long if current operating rates are maintained," Steel said. "At the moment, however, the tendency for buyers is to hold orders to a minimum with the result steel order backlogs are shrinking rapidly in most products."

How do you invite a boy to a party or dance? Do you know? It's the puzzler in this letter from a high school girl:—

"I am planning a surprise party for my girl friend, I like a certain boy a lot and would like to know how to ask him to come. I am sure he likes me. My problem is how can I invite him? I would appreciate an answer in the paper."

Ans.—It's easy! Just tell him when you see him at school that you're planning a surprise party for a girl friend and hope that he can come—there'll be other boys and girls he knows there. If he knows others who will be there, he'll be more likely to accept the invitation and will have less reason to be shy—if he's the shy type.

Be sure to tell him where the party will be, the time to arrive and the time to leave, saying, "It will be from 7:30 to 11" or whatever you plan. If you don't see him at school or elsewhere very often, give him a buzz on the phone, but keep telephone calls to a minimum.

"The girl I go with is very quiet and doesn't talk much. I talk about all sorts of subjects that I think will be of interest, but she still does not talk. Could you tell me something to talk about that would interest her?"

Babich Case Booked To Go To Jury Today

MILWAUKEE, June 20 — Handsome, dark-haired Milton Babich's fate will rest with a Milwaukee jury today in the first degree murder trial marked by tearful testimony and flaring tempers.

Closing arguments were scheduled at court opening and the jury of ten men and two women was expected to hear Judge Herbert J. Steffes' charge late in the day.

Babich is accused of the premeditated slaying of his sister-in-law, Patricia Birmingham of Ans—It's easy! Just tell him when you see him at school that you're planning a surprise party for a girl friend and hope that he can come—there'll be other boys and girls he knows there. If he knows others who will be there, he'll be more likely to accept the invitation and will have less reason to be shy—if he's the shy type.

Be sure to tell him where the party will be, the time to arrive and the time to leave, saying, "It will be from 7:30 to 11" or whatever you plan. If you don't see him at school or elsewhere very often, give him a buzz on the phone, but keep telephone calls to a minimum.

"The girl I go with is very quiet and doesn't talk much. I talk about all sorts of subjects but I think will be of interest, but she still does not talk. Could you tell me something to talk about that would interest her?"

Babich Case Booked To Go To Jury Today

MILWAUKEE, June 20—Handsome, dark-haired Milton Babich's fate will rest with a Milwaukee jury today in the first degree murder trial marked by tearful testimony and flaring tempers.

Closing arguments were scheduled at court opening and the jury of ten men and two women was expected to hear Judge Herbert J. Steffes' charge late in the day.

Babich is accused of the premeditated slaying of his sister-in-law, Patricia Birmingham of West Allis, last Feb. 10. He has insisted the 16-year-old girl was shot to death accidentally during his attempt to "scare her into silence" over her then unwed sister's pregnancy.

Judge Steffes said he would recommend three possible verdicts to the jury. They were guilty of first degree murder with life imprisonment mandatory, guilty of fourth degree manslaughter with a 1-to-2 year jail term and acquittal.

She is 14 years old and very pretty."

Ans—Unless she thinks that she's pretty enough to interest you without talking, she'll probably have something to say on these subjects—most girls do: Movies, favorite motion picture stars, school teams, school clubs and social affairs. Favorite bands, records, music on her own personal hit parade. Possibly favorite sports if she plays tennis, bowls, skates, swims. Possibly hobbies, if any.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 20—

It's the wife who decides where a family will spend its vacation. W. J. Robinson, general manager of the Automobile Club of Hartford, says that the women in a family "either make the vacation decision outright or, in more subtle fashion, influence the husband to make the correct choice."

ELECTRICAL HAZARD

A RECENT study by the Greater New York Safety Council brought the report that failure to check household electrical devices has become a leading home accident hazard. Home fires and injury or death from electrical shock result from such things as frayed lamp cords, defective switches, worn-out appliances and the like. There seems to be widespread failure to realize the danger from such seemingly small things, and few householders make it a practice to inspect their homes periodically to find electrical hazards of this kind.

Another contributing cause to many accidents is the general failure to appreciate the relationship between electrical wiring and grounded metal. The grounded metal objects in a house include such things as all piping, bathtubs, sinks, lavatories and other plumbing fixtures, heat pipes and radiators, gas stoves and heaters, and other metal objects which may touch these things. In buildings of steel framework construction, any metal on the building itself is likely to be grounded. One of these grounded objects and a bit of exposed electrical conductor, or a defective lamp or other appliance, may at any time complete an electrical circuit, perhaps through some person's body, with disastrous results.

Familiarity breeds contempt, as has often been said. We have had electricity in our houses long enough to accept it as a familiar thing, perhaps to become too inattentive to its power. More respect for the potent force in the little wires might save a few houses and a few lives.

RUSSIAN TROUBLES

THERE is trouble in the Ukraine and the Caucasus. Anti-Communist guerrillas have developed so much strength that each region has drawn in two divisions of Soviet troops to supplement the regular police.

If there is revolt anywhere against the Russian government's rigid discipline, it should be there. The Ukraine was the home of the Dnieper Cossacks who in the seventeenth century built up an almost independent state while nominally under Polish rule. Revolting against Poland, they gave their allegiance to Russia. When they made trouble for their new masters, they were transferred eastward to the Don River. But their tradition of independence still remains, and Ukrainians are careful to point out that their language, though resembling Russian, is really different.

The Caucasus mountaineers have been hard to subdue and keep subdued. In the middle of the nineteenth century their leader Schamyl fought the Russians for 25 years until he was finally captured. It would not be surprising if people of the Caucasus were still moved by his heroic example.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

No one can explain why the Paris conference was ever held. It seems that Philip Jessup, representative of the United States, and Jacob Malik of Soviet Russia, both delegates to the United Nations, reached a state of social salubrity and that laid the groundwork for the conference.

It would also seem that the Andrei Gromykos, husband and wife, like the Warren Austins, sire and spouse, took to each other, and out of such amity came a revised attitude on the part of the lord of half the human race, Joe Stalin, toward the United States. So Andrei Vishinsky came to Paris to meet with Dean Acheson and Ernest Bevin and Vishinsky opened up in the pleasantest manner but did not stay that way long.

Actually, this country was anxious to get rid of the Berlin Airlift; the State Department was anxious to get rid of Gen. Lucius Clay; the Russians were anxious to explore our minds on the subject of China. They expected that we would take the Russian conquest of that country seriously, only to discover that we are limiting ourselves to withholding recognition from the Chinese Communists. So all that was expected was done and no more.

Acheson is to be congratulated that he returns with his shirt on and his pants not stolen, which figuratively is what happened to all his predecessors who attended conferences with the Russians. Acheson, as a matter of fact, got off one of the most delightful sentences about the Russian peace offer being all fleas and no dog. Of course, Acheson has had a longer experience than most of his predecessors, particularly Franklin D. Roosevelt, James Byrnes and Harry Truman, who were tyros when they got into their conferences, playing against top-notch professionals who have had perhaps 30 years of experience at making things unpleasant for the United States of America.

Furthermore, Acheson has to be more careful than his predecessors. It is difficult to think of a period in American history when the State Department, which he heads, was less popular and more suspect than it is today. Every new investigation and every trial of Communists brings to light additional and more startling errors of the State Department. True, much of this criticism reflects upon such managers of our foreign relations as Roosevelt, Cordell Hull, Ed Stettinius, Byrnes and George Marshall, but Acheson has to bear the brunt of it all and it requires astuteness and care not to have it all dumped on his head. Therefore, even if he prefers some deal with the Russians, which I do not believe, he would not dare come home with anything like Yalta or Potsdam. At any rate, he is not doing so and that is to his credit.

Lewis is right 100 per cent is when he denounces the dangerous conditions under which the coal miners work, and the failure of operators and state mine safety officials to alleviate these conditions. Cold Sores Not Due To Colds; They're a Virus Infection

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

EVERYBODY knows what cold sores are, but few realize that colds have nothing to do with bringing them about. Known by the scientific name of herpes simplex, these little clumps of blisters are due to a virus infection. On the other hand, this condition does not appear to be contagious, that is, passed about from one person to another.

People who develop cold sores seem to be subject to recurrent attacks, usually at the same place on the skin. Others never have them. In susceptible individuals, cold sores can be brought on by a good many different things. Among them are fever, injuries, exposure to ultraviolet rays, sunlight, or wind, the eating of certain foods, indigestion, and the use of certain drugs.

Form Sores

Cold sores first start as blisters which break open and form scabs. They are most commonly located around the lips, but occasionally may develop on the cheek, back, ear, fingers or arms. Sometimes, disfiguring scars may follow attacks of herpes.

Persons with herpes should avoid over-treatment of the condition. A mild astringent or shrinking agent used on the lips, and a gentian violet solution on the inner lining of the lips are usually sufficient.

Repeated vaccination with small-pox vaccine has been attempted in an effort to prevent recurrent herpes. Good results have been obtained with this method of treatment in a number of cases. The vaccine is usually given weekly for six or eight weeks.

Exposure to X-Ray

Another form of treatment to prevent recurrences has been exposure to X-ray. Such treatment seems to diminish the severity of the attacks and to lengthen the periods between recurrences. Of course, the X-ray treatments must be given by a specialist to make sure that an overdosage does not occur.

The herpes virus, it is thought, may at times cause an infection of the mouth known as stomatitis. The condition may also affect the gums, and may resemble trench mouth. The treatment of this disorder also consists of the use of a mild antiseptic painted on the affected areas. Gentian violet has been used for this purpose.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

B. K.: I have a very bad sinus infection with a yellow discharge from my nose. Is there something that will remedy this?

Answer: Sinus infection of the chronic type always should be treated under the direction of the physician.

One good method of treatment, consists in the use of aerosol penicillin, which is penicillin in the form of a mist that is breathed into the nose. Frequently, suction is employed to aid in speedy recovery.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

If the race for state taxes keeps up, the 48 Balkanizing baronies ought to be able to absorb all the unemployed as border guards.

Massachusetts has tax agents spying on citizens who buy their hard liquor in New Hampshire and New Hampshire expected to finger-print locals who go to Boston for their baked beans.

Connecticut has been watching its commuters who trade in New York while New York searches citizens for cigarettes secured in New Jersey and New Jersey microscopes the mails for smokes from Delaware.

While congressmen argue free trade between nations the state governments are fixing it so there isn't any between states.

Seems only yesterday the colonists were protesting a tax on British tea and today a fellow with a hanger is subject to penalties if he stepped across a state border to get it.

SYNOPSIS

Marvell becomes acquainted with his little daughter, Katherine, when he returns to Boston from a distant city to attend his late wife, Elizabeth's funeral. They had lived apart for years. He is assisted by his aristocratic but Bay in-laws, especially by brother-in-law Proctor who has helped wreck the marriage. Proctor is furious when he finds that his deceased sister has left her entire personal estate—and the custody of her daughter—to this estranged husband.

CHAPTER SEVEN

THE light drizzle had stopped and a pale, shifting fog had dropped down on the trees of the Mall. They were solitary walkers. An occasional cab passed them. Neither wanted to speak. Their steps echoed over each crossing. When they reached the Garden, Ben spoke for the first time.

"Shall we cut across? The planks are still down. It won't be muddy." He was puffing a little, shorter than Marvell, he had had to double his pace to fit Marvell's long strides. His eyeglasses were speckled with moisture. He stopped to wipe them off and then carefully placed them in their case, returning it to his inner pocket. Now the streets were more than ever a blur and he edged closer to Marvell the way a nearsighted person instinctively seeks protection.

Hatless, Marvell's head shone wetly. He ran a hand through his hair and took a deep breath. "Great night. Smell the earth. There should be peepers in that pond by now. Would be in the country." The board walk rattled under their feet. The Garden was humming with shreds of vapor. Ben felt that he should start talking but it was a world of silence not to be broken by the brittleness of a human voice.

Marvell had not smelt the rich damp of open earth for a long time. His weariness had gone. He felt a rising excitement inside and out. He forgot Ben beside him and for a delicious moment nothing existed for him but the spring wine of the night. But only for a moment; his arm swung against his coat pocket and the crackling papers brought all his state plans and doubts. Did this nomination for respectability change anything? He could not see that it did. As angry as Proctor made him, he could appreciate a little of his dismay at Elizabeth's betrayal. What I said then, still goes, he thought. I'll turn the money, but I'll keep the title, and, grinning a little, he could see himself a few years hence standing in the Grand Central, casually confiding to a friend, "I've got to be on the midnight to Boston. And back tomorrow. I go up about twice a year, you know, to confer about my wife's estate. Purely impersonal affair, not a cent in it for me. Everything went to my daughter. A remarkably fine girl, lives with her mother's family, old Boston people."

Crossing Charles Street, they started up the Hill. "Come in for a nightcap," Ben invited when they reached the white door of his house. "Where are you staying the night?"

"Anywhere, nowhere. I am going to walk a lot." Marvell rubbed the sole of his shoe back and forth on the iron foot-scraper while Ben found his key. "Do you think I am a drunkard, Ben?"

The brass knocker door swung back. Ben looked over his shoulder at him. "No," he said simply, "I don't."

This was the second time that day that Marvell felt grateful for someone's acceptance of him, temporary as it might be. First Katherine and now Ben.

The Chestnut Street house was all that the other was not, small but beautifully proportioned, warm and well lit and breathing with vitality as a house should be. "I'll run up to Fanny a moment. Help yourself to what you want, won't you?" He disappeared up the curving mahogany stairs. There was a wood fire dancing in this white paneled room. Marvell threw his coat over a chair. He unstopped a square glass decanter, poured himself a liberal drink and tasted it slowly. There was a clean smell of wood smoke. He picked up a red leather book from a table. The bookplate intrigued him. He would have some made for himself. "The Marvell of it is . . ." He was pleased with this fancy. But it pricked him, too. Whenever would he get time to read books, let alone collect them. He had not yet found his center—as Ben had done. It would be lonely, starting out again. He touched the little sore of self-pity to see how much it hurt. But it was worth it, he would be free. That was all he wanted. He winked at himself in the mirror above the mantel. Brace up, he said, they all envy you.

Ben returned, wringing a little tune. "Fanny regrets she can't come down, but she begs me to make you comfortable. Have you got what you want? Brandy?"

Marvell nodded. Ben filled a glass for himself, sat down near the fire, stretched his damp shoes to the grate, and asked briskly, "What do you intend to do in New York?"

"Start in all over again." He was eager to talk and he felt he could clear his own mind by matching up the pieces in front of Ben. "I guess you wouldn't mind Doc Sandy-haired man, used to work for old Barlow. He was the only friend we had left that winter in Cambridge. . . . He paused, half expecting Ben to say something. Then he covered the gap in a faster rush of words. "Well, he did a lot for us. Elizabeth liked him but it worried her that she couldn't make him say more than a single word at a time. He was shy, you know, and I think he was a little embarrassed by knowing so much about us. He used to come over once a week with a big bag of provisions—

oranges, canned goods, a ham, plunk it down on the table with a nervous look over his shoulder to see if we noticed.

"I remember him," said Ben. "A bookkeeper. What will you do together?"

Marvell had finished his drink and poured himself another. "Well, he has some money saved up—he lives on a string. We can begin together in a small way. I'll do all the salesmanship, contracting and estimating. We can get a couple of green draftsmen right out of school for a starter. There are lots of ways an outfit that size can edge in on jobs a big firm wouldn't bother with. I've made good contacts in the west and there's always room for anyone in New York."

"I daresay," murmured Ben. Marvell expanded visibly even under one time or another, Ben, I've wanted to do a number of things—architecture, chemistry, navigation—even acting. I've tried a couple of them—it's not a bad record for a plumber, is it? That's what I am at bottom—a plumber."

Ben thought with a touch of distaste that he could appreciate at times Proctor's lack of response to Marvell. He was so willing to show himself off.

"Just why did you come back?" interrupted Ben abruptly.

The glow of exuberance faded a little from Marvell's face. Without warning, Ben had brought him up sharply.

"I got a telegram," he said. "I thought they wanted me to come."

The man was so ingenious, Ben felt uncomfortable. He didn't have any idea of the fine lines of restraint or modesty that shaped the manner and minds of most of the men he knew.

"Did you have any idea that Elizabeth was seriously ill?"

"Not much, she had had a cold that hung on. We didn't write a good deal. Why—do you think I should have stayed away?"

"I merely wondered what you expected."

"Nothing." Marvell gave a short laugh. "Not the will, if that's what you mean. As for Proctor—a little more good will."

"You can't blame him particularly under the circumstances. It is hard to forget certain things."

"Like old Barlow's funeral, I suppose you mean? Good Lord, I was only sympathetic. I liked the old man. That was the time Proctor looked me in."

"You were very disrespectful to old Barlow's children's feelings, I must say."

"Oh, I have a lot to be forgiven for," he agreed.

Ben was annoyed. There, again, was that easy acceptance of anything that touched himself.

The rarest and most irresistible scent in the world, according to perfumers, is musk. The Empress Josephine used it—and fifty years after her death, sight-seers noted a distinct fragrance in her boudoir. The world's entire supply of musk, explains Jennie Harris in an article in Natural History, comes from a species of deer in the Himalayas.

The musk deer is less than two feet tall. The perfume—in tiny musk grains—is held in a pouch about the size of a walnut, near the base of his abdomen. When the deer rests on a rock the musk is exposed, and the sun, heating the rock, diffuses the scent, and thus signals the hunters. One grain of musk perfumes millions of cubic feet of air, which is a dubious blessing if

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

Marlene Dietrich

NEW YORK—Today I am shilling for a phonograph record company because it has pressed a record that seems to me to rank with the few contemporary classics. The record is Marlene Dietrich's Black Market, the song she sang so wonderfully in a flat and un-funny movie called A Foreign Affair. I find, with great relief, that I am not forced to disclose the record company's name.

I have given the singer and the song and all you have to do is go into your music shop and pick up two or three copies of it, because you will find that one will wear out after a couple of hundred playings. You will just have to take my word for it that I have no stock in this record company and that Miss Dietrich is not my sister-in-law.

In fact, I do not want Miss Dietrich for my sister-in-law. I have bigger ideas for her and me in the grand design of things, and have had for some time.

If you read this column with any regularity, you know that I have a small, select handful of women with whom I have been in love for many years—Katharine Hepburn, the late Elissa Landi, Liz Whitney (until I saw her chewing gum), Anna Sten (until I saw her in a movie called Let's Live a Little, the other day) and one or two others.

Miss Dietrich is right near the top in this exclusive little colony. Indeed, after listening to Black Market, I am of a mind to put her right at the top.

NO ONE WILL BE ABLE TO SAY successfully why a woman is alluring. Scientific men who put emotion on a slide under the glass have said that voice and hair are a female's most magnetic traits. That could be, but there is more to Miss Dietrich than just that marvelous, husky contralto and her tresses, that are the color of a bright wheatfield. It defines analysis.

However, when she half-talks, half-sings, half-insinuates Black Market, it must be admitted that her voice has, ahem, considerable stature. It has a personal quality, as if she is sitting in the room leering exquisitely at you, and it also has the tired and cynical sound to it that is fatal to men anywhere. You tell me why it is that men are so fascinated by women who seem to have been through life's mill and back a dozen times.

I met Marlene a little less than five years ago, and, of course, it seems like yesterday. She was sitting on a sofa in a suite at the St. Regis, with a big photograph of Jean Gabin on the mantelpiece and The Legs tucked under her, and it wasn't hard to see why the boys in the United States Army were crazy about her just at that particular time.

She had just come back from a trip through Italy and Africa and the word was that she had been acclaimed wildly as Diana of the Hunt, the Great Magoo, all the great women of the world. I could see why. Even in the harsh daylight, that sunny afternoon, there was something about her to make you forget the ties that bind.

She wore a simple print dress, no stockings, no jewelry, no clips in the ashen hair, and only lipstick on her face. She was as simple as that, but whatever it is the big ones have, she had it.

I REMEMBER A STORY THAT BERNARD LAMOTTE, the French painter, told me. He is a close friend of Miss Dietrich's and when she is in town she comes frequently to his apartment-studio in the Fifties and cooks dinner for the crowd of celebrities who usually are to be found in LaMotte's place.

One night, when everyone was sitting around over coffee, Marlene wandered down into the living room of the duplex apartment and seated herself at the grand piano.

She began to play, little wisps of songs and chords, and as she sat there in a silver evening dress with her head over the keys, LaMotte, in his own words, "just couldn't stand it."

"I jumped up," he said, "and turned off every light in the apartment—and switched a blue spotlight on Marlene, as she played. She was the most beautiful thing I ever have seen in my life!"

Get that Black Market record. You may have a rough idea what Bernard means.

ELECTRICAL HAZARD

A RECENT study by the Greater New York Safety Council brought the report that failure to check household electrical devices has become a leading home accident hazard. Home fires and injury or death from electrical shock result from such things as frayed lamp cords, defective switches, worn-out appliances and the like. There seems to be widespread failure to realize the danger from such seemingly small things, and few householders make it a practice to inspect their homes periodically to find electrical hazards of this kind.

Another contributing cause to many accidents is the general failure to appreciate the relationship between electrical wiring and grounded metal. The grounded metal objects in a house include such things as all piping, bathtubs, sinks, lavatories and other plumbing fixtures, heat pipes and radiators, gas stoves and heaters, and other metal objects which may touch these things. In buildings of steel framework construction, any metal on the building itself is likely to be grounded. One of these grounded objects and a bit of exposed electrical conductor, or a defective lamp or other appliance, may at any time complete an electrical circuit, perhaps through some person's body, with disastrous results.

Familiarity breeds contempt, as has often been said. We have had electricity in our houses long enough to accept it as a familiar thing, perhaps to become too inattentive to its power. More respect for the potent force in the little wires might save a few houses and a few lives.

RUSSIAN TROUBLES

THERE is trouble in the Ukraine and the Caucasus. Anti-Communist guerrillas have developed so much strength that each region has drawn in two divisions of Soviet troops to supplement the regular police.

If there is revolt anywhere against the Russian government's rigid discipline, it should be there. The Ukraine was the home of the Dnieper Cossacks who in the seventeenth century built up an almost independent state while nominally under Polish rule. Revolting against Poland, they gave their allegiance to Russia. When they made trouble for their new masters, they were transferred eastward to the Don River. But their tradition of independence still remains, and Ukrainians are careful to point out that their language, though resembling Russian, is really different.

The Caucasus mountaineers have been hard to subdue and keep subdued. In the middle of the nineteenth century their leader Schamyl fought the Russians for 25 years until he was finally captured. It would not be surprising if people of the Caucasus were still moved by his heroic example.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

No one can explain why the Paris conference was ever held. It seems that Philip Jessup, representative of the United States, and Jacob Malik of Soviet Russia, both delegates to the United Nations, reached a state of social salubrity and that laid the groundwork for the conference.

It would also seem that the Andrei Gromykos, husband and wife, like the Warren Austins, sire and spouse, took to each other, and out of such amity came a revised attitude on the part of the lord of half the human race, Joe Stalin, toward the United States. So Andrei Vishinsky came to Paris to meet with Dean Acheson and Ernest Bevin and Vishinsky opened up in the pleasantest manner but did not stay that way long.

Actually, this country was anxious to get rid of the Berlin Airlift; the State Department was anxious to get rid of Gen. Lucius Clay; the Russians were anxious to explore our minds on the subject of China. They expecting that we would take the Russian conquest of that country seriously, only to discover that we are limiting ourselves to withholding recognition from the Chinese Communists. So all that was expected was done and no more.

Acheson is to be congratulated that he returns with his shirt on and his pants not stolen, which figuratively is what happened to all his predecessors who attended conferences with the Russians. Acheson, as a matter of fact, got off one of the most delightful sentences about the Russian peace offer being all fleas and no dog. Of course, Acheson has had a longer experience than most of his predecessors, particularly Franklin D. Roosevelt, James Byrnes and Harry Truman, who were tyros when they got into their conferences, playing against top-notch professionals who have had perhaps 30 years of experience at making things unpleasant for the United States of America.

Furthermore, Acheson has to be more careful than his predecessors. It is difficult to think of a period in American history when the State Department, which he heads, was less popular and more suspect than it is today. Every new investigation and every trial of Communists brings to light additional and more startling errors of the State Department. True, much of this criticism reflects upon such managers of our foreign relations as Roosevelt, Cordell Hull, Ed Stettinius, Byrnes and George Marshall, but Acheson has to bear the brunt of it all and it requires astuteness and care not to have it all dumped on his head. Therefore, even if he prefers some deal with the Russians, which I do not believe, he would not dare come home with anything like Yalta or Potsdam. At any rate, he is not doing so and that is to his credit.

TO END MINE DISASTERS

ONE time when John L. Lewis is right 100 per cent is when he denounces the dangerous conditions under which the coal miners work, and the failure of operators and state mine safety officials to alleviate these conditions. This failure has been scandalous and horrifying, and should be ended. A bill giving federal mine inspectors the right to shut down any unsafe mine is now before a Senate sub-committee, to which Lewis made his speech. The bill deserves support.

Cold Sores Not Due To Colds; They're a Virus Infection

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

EVERYBODY knows what cold sores are, but few realize that colds have nothing to do with bringing them about. Known by the scientific name of herpes simplex, these little clumps of blisters are due to a virus infection. On the other hand, this condition does not appear to be contagious, that is, passed about from one person to another.

People who develop cold sores seem to be subject to recurrent attacks, usually at the same place on the skin. Others never have them. In susceptible individuals, cold sores can be brought on by a good many different things. Among them are fever, injuries, exposure to ultraviolet rays, sunlight, or wind, the eating of certain foods, indigestion, and the use of certain drugs.

Form Scabs

Cold sores first start as blisters which break open and form scabs. They are most commonly located around the lips, but occasionally may develop on the cheek, back, ear, fingers or arms. Sometimes, disfiguring scars may follow attacks of herpes.

Persons with herpes should avoid over-treatment of the condition. A mild astringent or shrinking agent used on the lips, and a gentian violet solution on the inner lining of the lips are usually sufficient. Repeated vaccination with small-pox vaccine has been attempted in an effort to prevent recurrent herpes. Good results have been obtained with this method of treatment in a number of cases. The vaccine is usually given weekly for six or eight weeks.

Exposure to X-Ray
Another form of treatment to prevent recurrences has been exposure to X-ray. Such treatment seems to diminish the severity of the attacks and to lengthen the periods between recurrences. Of course, the X-ray treatments must be given by a specialist to make sure that an overdosage does not occur.

The herpes virus, it is thought, may at times cause an infection of the mouth known as stomatitis. The condition may also affect the gums, and may resemble trench mouth. The treatment of this disorder also consists of the use of a mild antiseptic painted on the affected areas. Gentian violet has been used for this purpose.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
B. K.: I have a very bad sinus infection with a yellow discharge from my nose. Is there something that will remedy this?

Answer: Sinus infection of the chronic type always should be treated under the direction of the physician.
One good method of treatment, consists in the use of aerosol penicillin, which is penicillin in the form of a mist that is breathed into the nose. Frequently, suction is employed to aid in speedy recovery.

Kiernan's ONE MAN'S OPINION

If the race for state taxes keeps up, the 48 Balkanizing baronies ought to be able to absorb all the unemployed as border guards.

Massachusetts has tax agents spying on citizens who buy their hard liquor in New Hampshire and New Hampshire expected to finger-print locals who go to Boston for their baked beans.

Connecticut has been watching its commuters who trade in New York while New York searches citizens for cigarettes secured in New Jersey and New Jersey microscopes the mails for smokes from Delaware.

While congressmen argue free trade between nations the state governments are fixing it so there isn't any between states.

Seems only yesterday the colonists were protesting a tax on British tea and today a fellow with a hangover is subject to penalties if he stepped across a state border to get it.

SYNOPSIS
Marvell Common becomes acquainted with a nightcap. Ben invited when they reached the white door of his house. "Where are you staying the night?"

CHAPTER SEVEN
The light drizzle had stopped and a pale, shifting fog had dropped down on the trees of the Mall. They were solitary walkers. An occasional cab passed them, neither wanted to speak. Their steps echoed over each crossing. When they reached the Garden, Ben spoke for the first time.

"Shall we cut across? The paths are still down. It won't be muddy." He was puffing a little, shorter than Marvell, he had had to double his pace to fit Marvell's long strides. His eyeglasses were speckled with moisture. He stopped to wipe them off and then carefully placed them in their case, returning it to his inner pocket. Now the streets were more than ever a blur and he edged closer to Marvell the way a nearsighted person instinctively seeks protection.

Marvell's head shone with sweat. He ran a hand through his hair and took a deep breath. "Great night. Smell the earth. There should be peepers in that pond by now. Would be in the country." The board walk rattled under their feet. The Garden was hung with shreds of vapor. Ben felt that he should start talking but it was a world of silence not to be broken by the brittleness of a human voice.

Marvell had not smelt the rich damp of open earth for a long time. His weariness had gone. He felt a rising excitement inside and out. He forgot Ben beside him, and for a delicious moment nothing existed for him but the spring wine of the night. But only for a moment; his arm swung against his coat pocket and the crackling papers brought all his stale plans and doubts. Did this nomination for respectability change anything? He could not see that it did. As angry as Proctor made him, he could appreciate a little of his dismay at Elizabeth's betrayal.

What I said then, still goes, he thought. I'll return the money, but I'll keep the title, and grinning a little, he would see himself a few years hence standing in the Grand Central, casually confiding to a friend, "I've got to be on the midnight to Boston. He back tomorrow. I go up about twice a year, you know, to confer about my wife's estate. Purely impersonal affair, not a cent in it for me. Everything went to my daughter. A remarkably fine girl, lives with her mother's family, old Boston people."

Crossing Charles Street, they started up the Hill. "Come in for a nightcap," Ben invited when they reached the white door of his house. "Where are you staying the night?"

"Anywhere, nowhere. I am going to walk a lot." Marvell rubbed the sole of his shoe back and forth on the iron foot-scraper while Ben found his key. "Do you think I am a drunkard, Ben?"

The brass knocker door swung back. Ben looked over his shoulder at him. "No," he said simply, "I don't."

This was the second time that day that Marvell felt grateful for someone's acceptance of him, temporary as it might be. First Katherine and now Ben. The Chestnut Street house was all that the other was not, small but beautifully proportioned, warm and well lit and breathing with vitality as a house should be. "I'll run up to Fanny a moment. Help yourself to what you want, won't you?" He disappeared up the curving mahogany stairs. There was a wood fire dancing in this white paneled room. Marvell threw his coat over a chair. He unstopped a square glass decanter, poured himself a liberal drink and tasted it slowly. There was a clean smell of wood smoke. He picked up a red leather book from a table. The bookplate intrigued him. He would have some made for himself. "The Marvell of it is..." He was pleased with this fancy. But it pricked him, too. Whenever would he get time to read books, let alone collect them. He had not yet found his center—as Ben had done. It would be lonely, starting out again. He touched the little sore of self-pity to see how much it hurt. But it was worth it, he would be free. That was all he wanted. He winked at himself in the mirror above the mantel. Brace up, he said, they all envy you.

Ben returned, whistling a little tune. "Fanny regrets she can't come down, but she begs me to make you comfortable. Have you got what you want? Brandy?" Marvell nodded. Ben filled a glass for himself, sat down near the fire, stretched his damp shoes to the grate, and asked briskly, "What do you intend to do in New York?"

"Start in all over again." He was eager to talk and he felt he could clear his own mind by matching up the pieces in front of Ben. "I guess you wouldn't remember Doc. Sandy-haired man, used to work for old Barlow. He was the only friend we had left that winter in Cambridge..." He paused, half expecting Ben to say something. Then he covered the gap in a faster rush of words. "Well, he did a lot for us. Elizabeth liked him but it worried her that she couldn't make him say more than a single word at a time. He was shy, you know, and I think he was a little embarrassed by knowing so much about us. He

oranges, canned goods, a ham, plunk it down on the table with a nervous look over his shoulder to see if we noticed.

"I remember him," said Ben. "A bookkeeper. What will you do together?"

Marvell had finished his drink and poured himself another. "Well, he has some money saved up—he lives on a string. We can begin together in a small way. I'll do all the salesmanship, contracting and estimating. We can get a couple of green draftsmen right out of school for a starter. There are lots of ways an outfit that size can edge in on jobs a big firm wouldn't bother with. I've made good contacts in the west and there's always room for anyone in New York."

"I daresay," murmured Ben. Marvell expanded visibly even under this luke-warm approval.

"At one time or another, Ben, I've wanted to do a number of things—architecture, chemistry, navigation—even acting. I've tried a couple of them—it's not a bad record for a plumber, is it? That's what I am at bottom—a plumber."

Ben thought with a touch of distaste that he could appreciate at times Proctor's lack of response to Marvell. He was so willing to show himself off.

"Just why did you come back?" interrupted Ben abruptly.

The glow of exuberance faded a little from Marvell's face. Without warning, Ben had brought him up sharply.

"I got a telegram," he said. "I thought they wanted me to come."

The man was so ingenious, Ben felt uncomfortable. He didn't have any idea of the fine lines of restraint or modesty that shaped the manner and minds of most of the men he knew.

"Did you have any idea that Elizabeth was seriously ill?"

"Not much, she had had a cold that hung on. We didn't write a good deal. Why—do you think I should have stayed away?"

"I merely wondered what you expected."

"Nothing," Marvell gave a short laugh. "Not the will, if that's what you mean. As for Proctor—a little more good will."

"You can blame him particularly under the circumstances. It is hard to forget certain things."

"Like old Barlow's funeral, I suppose you mean? Good Lord, I was only sympathetic. I liked the old man. That was the time Proctor locked me in."

"You were very disrespectful to old Barlow's children's feelings, I must say."

Ben was annoyed. There, again, was that easy acceptance of anything that touched himself.

The rarest and most irreplaceable scent in the world, according to perfumers, is musk. The Empress Josephine used it—and fifty years after her death, sight-seers noted a distinct fragrance in her boudoir. The world's entire supply of musk, explains Jennie Harris in an article in Natural History, comes from a species of deer in the Himalayas.

The musk deer is less than two feet tall. The perfume—in tiny musk grains—is held in a pouch about the size of a walnut, near the base of his abdomen. When the deer rests on a rock the musk is exposed, and the sun, heating the rock, diffuses the scent, and thus signals the hunters. One grain of musk perfumes millions of cubic feet of air, which is a dubious blessing to

By MEL HEIMER

Marlene Dietrich

NEW YORK—Today I am shilling for a phonograph record company because it has pressed a record that seems to me to rank with the few contemporary classics. The record is Marlene Dietrich's of Black Market, the song she sang so wonderfully in a flat and un-funny movie called A Foreign Affair. I find, with great relief, that I am not forced to disclose the record company's name.

I have given the singer and the song and all you have to do is go into your music shop and pick up two or three copies of it, because you will find that one will wear out after a couple of hundred playings. You will just have to take my word for it that I have no stock in this record company and that Miss Dietrich is not my sister-in-law.

In fact, I do not want Miss Dietrich for my sister-in-law. I have bigger ideas for her and me in the grand design of things, and have had for some time.

If you read this column with any regularity, you know that I have a small, select handful of women with whom I have been in love for many years—Katharine Hepburn, the late Elissa Landi, Liz Whitney (until I saw her chewing gum), Anna Sten (until I saw her in a movie called Let's Live a Little, the other day) and one or two others.

Miss Dietrich is right near the top in this exclusive little colony. Indeed, after listening to Black Market, I am of a mind to put her right at the top.

NO ONE WILL BE ABLE TO SAY successfully why a woman is shilling. Scientific men who put emotion on a slide under the glass have said that voice and hair are a female's most magnetic traits. That could be, but there is more to Miss Dietrich than just that marvelous, husky contralto and her tresses, that are the color of a bright wheatfield. It defies analysis.

However, when she half-talks, half-sings, half-insinuates Black Market, it must be admitted that her voice has, ahem, considerable stature. It has a personal quality, as if she is sitting in the room leaning exquisitely at you, and it also has the tired and cynical sound to it that is fatal to men anywhere. You tell me why it is that men are so fascinated by women who seem to have been through life's mill and back a dozen times.

I met Marlene a little less than five years ago, and, of course, it seems like yesterday. She was sitting on a sofa in a suite at the St. Regis, with a big photograph of Jean Gabin on the mantelpiece and The Legs tucked under her, and it wasn't hard to see why the boys in the United States Army were crazy about her just at that particular time.

She had just come back from a trip through Italy and Africa and the word was that she had been acclaimed wildly as Diana of the Hunt, the Great Magoo, all the great women of the world. I could see why. Even in the harsh daylight, that sunny afternoon, there was something about her to make you forget the ties that bind.

She wore a simple print dress, no stockings, no jewelry, no clips in the athen hair, and only lipstick on her face. She was as simple as that, but whatever it is the big ones have, she had it.

I REMEMBER A STORY THAT BERNARD LAMOTTE, the French painter, told me. He is a close friend of Miss Dietrich's and when she is in town she comes frequently to his apartment-studio in the Fifties and cooks dinner for the crowd of celebrities who usually are to be found in LaMotte's place.

One night, when everyone was sitting around over coffee, Marlene wandered down into the living room of the duplex apartment and seated herself at the grand piano.

She began to play, little wisps of songs and chords, and as she sat there in a silver evening dress with her head over the keys, LaMotte, in his own words, "just couldn't stand it."

"I jumped up," he said, "and turned off every light in the apartment—and switched a blue spotlight on Marlene, as she played. She was the most beautiful thing I ever have seen in my life!"

Get that Black Market record. You may have a rough idea what Bernard means.

Jo Olive Doolittle Is Mrs. Carl M. Bach Following Saturday Rites

Parents' Home Scene Of Ceremony

Jo Olive Doolittle became the bride Saturday afternoon of Carl Mayo Bach in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Doolittle, of West High street.

The bridegroom is a son of Mrs. Grace N. Bach of East Main street and the late George P. Bach.

The Rev. Clarence Swearingen of Williamsport performed the ceremony before a mantle where baskets of gladioli, fern and delphinium were arranged to form an altar. Tall white tapers interspersed the floral decorations.

Miss Jean Richard of Akron, niece of the bride, was maid of honor.

Paul M. Seigwald of Circleville was best man.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride repeated vows in a white lace ankle length gown fashioned over white taffeta. She carried a colonial bouquet of white net with pink rosebuds centering a background of white carnations.

A reception immediately followed. Guests were members of both families and a few friends. Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Howard B. Richard, and Miss Richard of Akron; Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Frary of Canton and Mr. and Mrs. G. Reed Bingham of Middletown.

Mrs. Frary, Mrs. Irvin R. Thomas and Mrs. Richard, sisters of the bride, assisted at the reception.

The brides table was centered by a three-tier wedding cake topped by a miniature bell. This was flanked by white tapers and bouquets of mixed flowers.

Mrs. Doolittle, mother of the bride, greeted her guests in a brown sheer dress with a yellow carnation corsage at her shoulder.

Mrs. Bach, mother of the bridegroom, was dressed in a navy-blue sheer with matching accessories. Her flowers were white carnations.

When the new Mr. and Mrs. Bach left for a trip to Geneva-On-The-Lake, the bride had changed to an aqua suit, white accessories and the rosebud corsage from her bridal bouquet.

The bride was graduated by Circleville high school and is employed in the office of a local lawyer.

The bridegroom also was graduated by the local high school. He attended Ohio State university and Franklin University and served with the U. S. Army.

When the bride and bridegroom return from their honeymoon, they will reside at 226½ East Main street.

Donna Thornton, Robert McClelland Married Sunday

Donna Jean Thornton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Thornton of Walnut street, became the bride of Robert Willis McClelland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Pearl McClelland of Laurelville Route 1, Sunday afternoon.

The Rev. Elisha Kneisley, pastor of First Methodist church, officiated for the ceremony in the church at 2:30 p. m. before an altar decorated with baskets of gladioli, fern and two-seven-branch candelabra holding white tapers.

Mr. Thornton gave his daughter in marriage. The bride repeated vows in a white taffeta gown with a fingertip veil of illusion caught to a headdress of beads. She carried a bouquet of white carnations centered with a white orchid.

Mrs. Robert Wilkinson Jr. of North Court street was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Bonnie Thornton and Miss Barbara Thornton, sisters of the bride.

John Thompson of Kingston, was best man. Groomsmen were Kenneth McClelland of Mt. Sterling and Mervin McClelland of Laurelville, brothers of the bridegroom.

Close relatives and friends were invited to the wedding and reception which followed in the home of the bride's parents.

Refreshments were served buffet style from a table decorated with a three-tier wedding cake topped by the traditional miniature bride and groom. The cake was decorated with pink rosebuds.

When the bride and bridegroom left on a trip through the Southeast the bride had changed to a navy blue dress, white accessories and the orchid from her bridal bouquet.

The new Mrs. McClelland was graduated by Circleville high school. She is employed by the Circleville GE plant.

The bridegroom was graduated by Laurelville high school and now is employed in Mt. Sterling.

The couple will go to housekeeping at 131 South Pickaway street.

Mrs. James Mowery was hostess to the society. Miss Mary Dresbach was assisting hostess.

Others elected were Mrs. William Thomas, vice-president, Miss Dresbach, treasurer, and Mrs. Wayne Luckhart, secretary. The program consisted of readings and musical selections with Mrs. Gill being in charge of the worship services.

Personals

* Mrs. George Green of North Court street left Sunday for a week in New York City.

The Rev. and Mrs. Donald E. Mitchell of East Mound street are in Wooster, attending the 26th annual Ohio Presbyterian convocation which opened Monday. The women's synodical was to hold its 28th annual meeting in conjunction with the convocation.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Starkey and sons of Walnut street and Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Hastings of Route 4 have returned from a visit with Charles E. Starkey and family of Princeton, W. Va.

Father's Day Party Held

John L. May of Circleville Route 4 was honored at a "Father's Day" dinner Sunday in Wardell Party Home given by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. May of West Mound street.

Other guests were Mrs. John L. May of Route 4; Mr. and Mrs. Alva D. May and daughter, Miss Donna May, of Ashville; Virgil G. May and Mr. and Mrs. Roger H. May and daughter, Valerie, of the Circleville community.

Wesley Wed Picnic Booked

Wesley Wed Sunday School class of Circleville First Methodist church is scheduled to hold its first family picnic of the Summer Friday evening.

Frank Wantz, class president, said the affair will be held at 6:30 p. m. in Logan Elm park near here. Election of officers will be the main item of business.

Clyde D. England Weds Nancy Nell Metzger

Nancy Nell Metzger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Metzger of Pleasant Ridge Avenue, Columbus, became the bride Saturday of Clyde Dwight England, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur England of South Pickaway street.

A double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Robert Fay and the Rev. Gordon R. Price in Columbus Trinity Episcopal church.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride repeated vows in a traditional white slipper-satin gown, featuring a collar outlined in pearls, an appliqued yoke and long tight sleeves ending in points over the wrists. The paneled skirt fell into a full circular train.

Mrs. Harry Heintz of Bexley, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Marjorie E. Hammar of Columbus and Miss Ellen Brown, of Tiffin, cousin of the bride.

Lyman England of Circleville attended his brother as best man.

Ushers were Harry Heintz of Bexley and Harold Pierce of Circleville Route 4.

A reception and wedding supper followed the ceremony in Balcony Hall, Columbus. A three-tiered wedding cake with pink and white decorations adorned the bride's table.

When the new couple left for a wedding trip to New York City, the bride had changed to a light grey and rose striped suit, white accessories and the orchid from her bridal bouquet.

The new Mrs. England was graduated by Bexley high school. She attended Ohio State and Capital universities.

The bridegroom attended Circleville high school and served in the Air Forces during World War II. He now is employed by Columbus General Depot.

When they return they will go to housekeeping in Bexley.

Ceremony Of June 11 Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kreisel of Circleville have announced the marriage of their daughter, Mary Jane, to Roy Hatten of Quincy, Calif. The couple was married June 11 in the Little Chapel of the Flowers in Berkeley, Calif.

The bride has been living in California for the last two years. She was graduated by Ohio State university, where she became a member of Alpha Xi Delta sorority.

The bridegroom attended the University of Texas before serving in the Navy Air Corps during the war. He was graduated by

Jo Olive Doolittle
Is Mrs. Carl M. Bach
Following Saturday Rites

Parents' Home Scene Of Ceremony

Jo Olive Doolittle became the bride Saturday afternoon of Carl Mayo Bach in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Doolittle, of West High street.

The bridegroom is a son of Mrs. Grace N. Bach of East Main street and the late George P. Bach.

The Rev. Clarence Swearingen of Williamsport performed the ceremony before a mantle where baskets of gladiola, fern and delphinium were arranged to form an altar. Tall white tapers interspersed the floral decorations.

Miss Jean Richard of Akron, niece of the bride, was maid of honor.

Paul M. Seigwald of Circleville was best man.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride repeated vows in a white lace ankle length gown fashioned over white taffeta. She carried a colonial bouquet of white net with pink rosebuds centering a background of white carnations.

A reception immediately followed. Guests were members of both families and a few friends. Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Howard B. Richard, and Miss Richard of Akron; Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Frary of Canton and Mr. and Mrs. G. Reed Bingham of Middletown.

Mrs. Frary, Mrs. Irvin R. Thomas and Mrs. Richard, sisters of the bride, assisted at the reception.

The brides table was centered by a three-tier wedding cake topped by a miniature bell. This was flanked by white tapers and bouquets of mixed flowers.

Mrs. Doolittle, mother of the bride, greeted her guests in a brown sheer dress with a yellow carnation corsage at her shoulder.

Mrs. Bach, mother of the bridegroom, was dressed in a navy-blue sheer with matching accessories. Her flowers were white carnations.

When the new Mr. and Mrs. Bach left for a trip to Geneva-On-The-Lake, the bride had changed to an aqua suit, white accessories and the rosebud corsage from her bridal bouquet.

The bride was graduated by Circleville high school and is employed in the office of a local lawyer.

The bridegroom also was graduated by the local high school. He attended Ohio State university and Franklin university and served with the U. S. Army.

When the bride and bridegroom return from their honeymoon, they will reside at 226½ East Main street.

Clyde D. England Weds Nancy Nell Metzger

Nancy Nell Metzger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Metzger of Pleasant Ridge Avenue, Columbus, became the bride Saturday of Clyde Dwight England, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur England of South Pickaway street.

A double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Robert Fay and the Rev. Gordon R. Price in Columbus Trinity Episcopal church.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride repeated vows in a traditional white slipper-satin gown, featuring a collar outlined in Venice lace encrusted in pearls, an appliqued yoke and long tight sleeves ending in points over the wrists. The paneled skirt fell into a full circular train.

Mrs. Harry Heintz of Bexley, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Marjorie E. Hammar of Columbus and Miss Ellen Brown, of Tiffin, cousin of the bride.

Lyman England of Circleville attended his brother as best man.

Ushers were Harry Heintz of Bexley and Harold Pierce of Circleville Route 4.

A reception and wedding supper followed the ceremony in Balcony Hall, Columbus. A three-tiered wedding cake with pink and white decorations adorned the bride's table.

In Memoriam

IN REMEMBRANCE
of Wallace W. Hill
passed away April 15, 1949
I cannot say—I will not say
That he is dead—he is just away!
With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand
He has wandered into an unknown land
And left us dreaming how very fair
It seems that he has been here before.
For the old-time step and the glad return
Think of him faring on, as dear
In the love of those, as the love of Here.
Think of him still as the same, I say,
He is not dead—his spirit is here.
Widow and Children

In loving memory of my beloved husband, Ray F. Pierce, on his 35th birthday anniversary June 20th.
Not dead to those who loved him,
Not forgotten, but gone before,
He lives with me in memory
And will forever more.
No one knows the silent heartache
Only those who've lost can tell;
The grief that's borne in silence,
For the one I loved so well,
My heart aches with sadness
My eyes shed many a tear.
God alone knows how I miss him at
The close of each day.
Sadly missed by his loving widow
F. F. Pierce

Sokolosky's

The British are pressing him to recognize Mao Tze-Tung, in China on a deal by which Hong Kong will be saved without a fight. Although such a deal would be temporary, the British are for it, because they have no longer any fight left in them. One of the much discussed tricks, by which the Chinese Communists can be recognized without the United States actually doing it would be for the United Nations to do the job, the United States abstaining from the vote. This trick is so raw that nobody believes any American official could survive it, and most of Acheson's friends say that it is too preposterous to believe.

But the fact is that it is not more preposterous than the instructions that President Truman gave to Marshall which, I am told, were written by John Carter Vincent, whose conduct in the State Department should be investigated by Congress, or the absurd accounting between the United States and China which makes one wonder whether they have an adding machine in the State Department.

So, Acheson comes home with a bone and that is all to the good and better than expected, and, so far as we know, the trip has not cost us billions of dollars or our honor and dignity as a people.

Drunken Driving Kills 5 In Crash

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 20—A 25-year-old Louisville man was held today on a charge of drunken driving, and manslaughter in the deaths of five dancing instructors killed when his car rammed the rear of a truck Saturday.

The prisoner, Harvey Wiggins, is also charged with drunkenness in a public place and reckless operation.

The dead were identified as Betty Thompson, 22; Venny Lee Craig, 21; Wordie Adams, 24; David C. Carby, 22, and Charles C. Everhart, 19, all of Louisville.

Walcott received the belt after his first fight with Louis. The Police Gazette's present publisher, H. H. Roswell, refused to accept the decision given Louis over the challenger and in ceremonies at Camden, N. J., Walcott became the first man since Willard to own the valuable bric-a-brac.

WHEN LOUIS BELTED Walcott out in their second fight the belt reverted to The Police Gazette and was to have gone to Louis, but, out of pique or something, the now retired champion never got around to accepting it. The late King George of England.

Wagner, Levine To Try It Again

CLEVELAND, June 20—Light Heavyweights Dick Wagner and Artie Levine may get their scheduled 10-round return match over with here tonight if the weather doesn't interfere again.

Wagner, the Portland, Ore., wallpaper and Levine, the battler from Brooklyn, were kept apart by two postponements last week when threatening weather forced Matchmaker Larry Atkins to call off the bouts.

Too much early Summer rain was the reason, according to the state conservation division. Anglers were waiting for muddy streams to return to normal. The fishing in Ohio was generally below expectations in June. Low water preceding the latest series of rains brought only "fair" fishing. Prospects brightened, however, after last week's deluge.

Legion '9' Racks Up 5th Victory

Winchester Beaten By 17-1 Score

Circleville's heavy-swinging Junior American Legion baseball team closed the gates of mercy against Winchester yesterday, racking up its fifth straight victory to the tune of a 17-1 verdict.

Starting out early, the local youngsters scored four runs in the first and six more in the second. They added four more in the fifth and one each in the sixth, seventh and eighth.

Winchester's lone tally came in the eighth.

Waving heavy sticks for the winners were Abe Rihl and John Valentine, each of whom collected homeruns.

Dudley Morris, stellar left-hander for the Circleville combine, labored on the hill. He allowed the single run, four hits, walked five and struck out a dozen batsmen.

Next game on the Circleville card is due next Sunday when the locals seek their sixth victory in as many starts with Waverly on the latter's field.

Box score of the game follows:

Schroeder-Mulloy Net Contest To Start Off Wimbledon Show

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 20—Dessert will be the first course at Wimbledon's tennis feast today.

Today's feature opening-day clash between two American stars, Ted Schroeder and Gardnar Mulloy, may well prove the most attractive match of the international court classic.

British interest was evident in the crowd that began to queue up for seats five hours before the tourney is to get underway.

The weather for the matches was rather chilly for a late June day but intermittent sunshine promised warm weather.

Schroeder is the first-seeded favorite. His 8-6, 6-0 win over the Floridian in Saturday's Queens Club is no criterion of the relative merits of this pair because Mulloy probably won the first set and didn't even try in the second.

MULLOY WAS at set point in the first set when a linesman's call went against him. Thereafter Mulloy merely flipped backhands into the net.

Although Schroeder said later he thought the linesman made a mistake, Mulloy's retort that he would "get Schroeder Monday" indicated that today's match will be a grudge affair. They are paired against each other in a blind draw.

All the 15,000 capacity of Wimbledon's famed center court probably will be packed for this clash despite the 63 other men's singles matches. A total of 592 net stars are entered.

Stars of 29 other countries will try to break American domination of the tourney. However, Dick Gonzales of Los Angeles is second choice to Schroeder, and another American, Frankie Parker, is third.

Then come Australia's John Bromwich, California's Bob Falkenberg, Jaroslav Drobny of Czechoslovakia, Eric Sturgess of South Africa, Josef Asboth of Hungary, and Sweden's Lennard Bergelin.

Charles, Walcott Tell Why Each To Beat Other

MOMENCE, Ill., June 20—A secret ballot of two votes, one by Ezzard Charles and one by Joe Walcott, has been taken to determine the probable winner of their heavyweight title fight Wednesday night.

The result, disclosed today, was a tie, with one vote for Charles and one for Walcott.

Amplifying their thoughts on paper at the behest of reporters, the two contenders had this to say:

Walcott: Charles must give me at least 16 pounds, which is bound to make a difference. I've fought his type before and won.

Charles: I'm not worried about Walcott's advantage in weight. Joe Louis outweighed Billy Conn by about 30 pounds and had a lot of trouble, though Conn couldn't punch as hard as I can.

The Indians blanked them 4-0 in the opener and beat 'em 4-3 in the nightcap of a Sunday doubleheader.

The Columbus Red Birds did the same thing to the janitor squad, Toledo. They opened with a 4-0 win and closed with a 4-3 capper over the dirt-eating Mudcats.

St. Paul missed the boat in the race for loop leadership by splitting with the third-place Milwaukee Brewers, thereby dropping one-half game behind the Indians.

The Brewers took the opener of a twin bill, 7-3, and the Saints salvaged the nightcap, 5-4.

Minneapolis and Kansas City, comfortably settled in fourth and seventh place respectively, bothered nobody as they split. The Millers took the first 10-7 and the Blues wrapped up the second, 8-5.

The opener of the Indianapolis-Louisville affair saw Jim Walsh hold the Colonels to six hits—all singles—in his first shutout win of the year. The 29-year-old right-hander has now won nine of his ten games.

In the second game, Louisville batters hit 10 times to the Indians' eight, but were unable to convert more than three of them to score-board material. Chet Johnson and Forrest Main combined for the win.

Ruth Memorial Is Dedicated

NEW YORK, June 20—New York has a new memorial today to Babe Ruth. It is "Babe Ruth Memorial Field," formerly Macombs Park, which is just to the north of Yankee Stadium where the late Bambino gained sports immortality.

The field, containing seven baseball diamonds and a quarter-mile track, was dedicated in Sunday ceremonies at which several of the Babe's former teammates and Bronx officials spoke. The Bambino's widow unveiled a plaque donated by Bronx Democrats.

Merchants '9' Slaps Hebron

The Circleville Merchants romped away with a 9-1 win over Hebron Independents in a game in Ted Lewis Park Sunday.

Two homeruns were chalked up during the game, both by Merchants. In the first inning Stonerock clouted a four-sacker to drive in Steel. Second homerun was made in the fifth when Paul Walters came to bat.

The Merchants wound up the game with 11 hits. The Independents left the park with only five.

Bass Season Producing Little

COLUMBUS, June 20—The black bass season in Ohio's streams opened June 16 but few fishermen bothered to try their hand on opening day.

The fishing in Ohio was generally below expectations in June. Low water preceding the latest series of rains brought only "fair" fishing. Prospects brightened, however, after last week's deluge.

Bob Feller Shows Some Improvement

Rapid Robert Wins Over Yanks, 4-2

NEW YORK, June 20—Bob Feller's 4 to 2 win over the New York Yankees yesterday, on Mickey Vernon's two-run homer in the 11th, wasn't nearly as good as it looks in the box score.

New York's sluggers tagged the Cleveland fireballer repeatedly with hard-hit drives, and only truly sensational catches by all three Cleveland outfielders saved his bacon.

Still, Rapid Robert, who had won only two games earlier in the season, is improving, and only one of the six hits made off him yesterday came after the fourth inning. He yet may be an important factor in the current surge of the world's champions, who have won five out of six on their eastern tour and are the only visiting club to have won a series in Yankee Stadium this year.

DETROIT CAME UP with really spectacular hurling in two paint jobs by Virgil Trucks and Freddie Hutchinson. In the first game of a twin bill, Trucks limited Washington to four hits, ran his string of consecutive shutout innings to 25-1-3, and racked up his 10th win of the season. The score was 9 to 0.

In the nightcap, Hutchinson held the Nats to eight hits and won, 7 to 0. The second-place Tigers advanced to within three games of the pace-setting Yankees in the American League race.

Alex Kellner pitched the Athletics to an 8 to 2 win over St. Louis, but Joe Ostrowski stopped Philadelphia in the nightcap, 7 to 3.

Charlie Stobbs of the Red Sox downed Chicago 9 to 2 for his first big league victory and Boston's fourth straight triumph over the White Sox. Ted Williams and Dom DiMaggio of the Sox hit three-run homers.

In the National League, the St. Louis Cardinals advanced to within one game of the pace-setting Brooklyn Dodgers by nosing out the Phillies, 6 to 5, on a ninth-inning single by Chuck Diering. Stan Musial hit two homers for the Red Birds, who now have knocked off two of their main rivals, Brooklyn and Philadelphia, hand-running.

JOHNNY SCHMITZ of the Chicago Cubs tamed his pet cousins, the Dodgers, 8 to 2, snapping Chicago's seven-game losing streak. Andy Pafko hit two homers for the Cubs.

Boston's Braves took third place, passing the Phillies, with two victories over Cincinnati, 5 to 2 and 3 to 2, behind Warren Spahn and Johnny Antonelli, the bonus kid who now definitely has made the grade in the big show.

Two errors by Sid Gordon were costly as the New York Giants lost to Pittsburgh, 9 to 4.

River Pollution Center Is Found

State conservation department officials said Monday that pollution in the Scioto river, which Saturday caused about 300 fish to die, apparently originated in an area about a mile above Chillicothe.

Ross County sources Saturday had pointed an accusing finger at Circleville and Columbus.

Definite cause of the pollution has not yet been officially determined but one source said it was possible that high water had rolled up foul sediment on the river's bottom, thus limiting the amount of oxygen in the water.

Lima Suspending Erring Players

LIMA, June 20—Two infielders of the Lima club of the Ohio-Indiana League faced indefinite suspension today for failure to report for duty.

Infielder Art Davidson and Third Sacker Mike Pett, who both live in Newark, N. J., presumably went home instead of reporting to Marion Saturday for a night game.

Lima Chiefs Manager Grover Hartley said he would notify Loop President Frank M. Coley in Columbus of the action of the two star infielders.

Bob Feller Shows Some Improvement

Rapid Robert Wins Over Yanks, 4-2

NEW YORK, June 20—Bob Feller's 4 to 2 win over the New York Yankees yesterday, on Mickey Vernon's two-run homer in the 11th, wasn't nearly as good as it looks in the box score.

New York's sluggers tagged the Cleveland fireballer repeatedly with hard-hit drives, and only truly sensational catches by all three Cleveland outfielders saved his bacon.

Still, Rapid Robert, who had won only two games earlier in the season, is improving, and only one of the six hits made off him yesterday came after the fourth inning. He yet may be an important factor in the current surge of the world's champions, who have won five out of six on their eastern tour and are the only visiting club to have won a series in Yankee Stadium this year.

DETROIT CAME UP with really spectacular hurling in two paint jobs by Virgil Trucks and Freddie Hutchinson. In the first game of a twin bill, Trucks limited Washington to four hits, ran his string of consecutive shutout innings to 25-1-3, and racked up his 10th win of the season. The score was 9 to 0.

In the nightcap, Hutchinson held the Nats to eight hits and won, 7 to 0. The second-place Tigers advanced to within three games of the pace-setting Yankees in the American League race.

Engineers Wonder Why Muhlenberg Township Where It Is

Tract Like Plug In Watermelon

Symmetry Ignored Back In 1830

Pickaway County engineers have a little mystery on their hands.

They want to know why Muhlenberg Township is slanted down in the middle of the county katty-wampus, like the plug in a watermelon.

Scanning back history of the county, engineers report that the county commissioners, back on Dec. 8, 1830—118 years ago—just decided to set up a new township named Muhlenberg.

It was set up all right, but with no respect for compass, natural boundaries or geometrical symmetry.

A look at the present day map reveals that each corner of the near-parallelgram protrudes into four surrounding townships, cutting out sizeable hunks of area from each.

The northeastern corner sticks up into Scioto Township, the northwestern into Darby Township, the southwestern into Monroe Township, and the southeastern into Jackson Township.

IF THE IMAGINARY boundaries of the four surrounding townships were projected through the present Muhlenberg territory it would reveal that the largest tract of land would fall into Jackson Township.

One stable factor in laying out the odd-sized township is that its largest corporation, Darbyville, is practically in the exact center of the area.

But on that December day in 1830 the commissioners laid out the boundaries with an order quoted as follows:

"Beginning one mile east of Judge Seymour's near the state road thence parallel with said road to the crossing of Dry Run so as to include Seymour and Bell. Thence in a straight line to the south end of George Row's so as to include the family.

"Thence southeast a straight line to two white oaks, from one root south corner of Vance Baker's survey of land, now owned by William Florence. Thence a parallel line with the first run line of the township until it intersects the road up Darby on the east side; thence to the beginning, which boundaries will be about six miles by four miles."

The above entry was found in Commissioner's Book "A" on file in the auditor's office. Although the file dates back as far as 1810, to Pickaway County's admittance in the state, no petition requesting the change has been uncovered.

According to a "History of Franklin and Pickaway Counties," written by the Rev. and Mrs. C. S. Percival, A. F. Mat-

PORTSMOUTH, June 20—Portsmouth police Sunday chopped through a four-inch door in the first raids under the city's new gambling law and found themselves today with 22 slot machines and a lot of cold cash.

Led by Police Chief Rudity, officers twice raided the Bohemian Club on the east end. Although the chief had a municipal court warrant, he said his men were refused entrance and had to chop down the thick door. Another raid was made on the East End 1114 Club.

thews, Henry A. Ford, H. Z. Williams, A. R. Wildman and J. H. SeCheverell, a change in the original boundaries was made on March 10, 1851.

The change was approved by the commissioners as follows:

"Beginning at the southeast corner of said surveyed township, below George Rowe's; Thence easterly in a straight line to intersect the section line of said township of Muhlenberg."

COMMISSIONERS gave as the reason for the change, "so as to leave the Widow VanMeter in Jackson Township."

According to the old history volume, the township was named in honor of Francis Muhlenberg, youngest son of General Peter Muhlenberg who settled the country in 1820. It adds that Francis Muhlenberg lived in the present territory for a number of years, but "died two years after his marriage, leaving no children to bear his name."

Local National Guard Company Shows Good In Range Practice

Members of Circleville's National Guard company braved blistering temperatures Saturday and Sunday to qualify on the rifle range for coming Summer maneuvers.

The unit, Co. I of the 166th Infantry, made an "excellent" showing, according to Capt. Charles Rudy, regimental instructor and Regular Army observer assigned to this area by Second Army headquarters.

The range, located near Chillicothe, was a steaming hotplate both days of the rifle drill but initial reports indicate that virtually all of Co. I's men met the requirements.

Some members of the outfit have not yet shot because jobs they hold require relief which was not available.

HOWEVER, Capt. Jack Clifton, company commander, said these men may qualify in subsequent weekends during drills for stragglers.

Captain Rudy said the Circleville showing was excellent for two reasons: (1) there are many recruits on the roster who never before had handled a regulation Army rifle under live firing conditions; and (2) this is the first live fire test for the company since last Summer.

A special compliment was handed Co. I's mess detail.

Maj. F. B. Folk of Chillicothe reported that the Circleville cooks' showing was the "best example of Army chow I've ever eaten."

The local crew provided full meals for an average of 100 men over the weekend. Four meals were served. They trucked their own kitchen gear to the range and prepared meals from products supplied from Circleville groceries.

Fisherman Fails In Try To Save Drowning Friend

PORTSMOUTH, June 20—A 36-year-old gasoline station attendant was recuperating today from his vain struggle to save a fellow fisherman who drowned in the Ohio river near here while fighting a catfish.

Ralph Destocki was rescued by fishermen as he went down for the third time after the limp hands of his friend, Clyde E. Brown, 31, had slipped from his shoulders.

Brown, said Destocki, was attempting to unhook a nine-pound catfish from a trot line when the fish finned him. The 31-year-old veteran stood up in the boat while battling the fish and the narrow craft tipped and sank, throwing both men into the river.

Busy on coaching assignments were Co. I's other top brass, First Lt. John McGinnis, the executive officer; First Lt. James Sensenbrenner, who served as firing pit officer; and Second Lt. Jack White.

A surprise observer during the firing was the regimental commander, Col. L. G. Windom of Columbus.

Qualifying on the range is a requirement of every man who will accompany the company when it participates in full field maneuvers at Camp Atterbury, Ind., later in the Summer.

Ex-GI To Wed Royal Princess

HECHINGEN, Germany, June 20—German royalty and plain American citizens gathered in this French zone town today for the wedding tomorrow of Texan Clyde Harris to Princess Cecilia von Hohenzollern.

The bride of the one-time U. S. Army lieutenant is a granddaughter of the late Kaiser Wilhelm, and members of the royal Hohenzollern family are flocking to the tiny village.

Man Is Held In Wife's Death

CELINA, June 20—Thomas Patrick Reedy of Celina shot his 19-year-old estranged wife to death early today with an antique revolver, Mercer County Coroner George I. McIlroy said the fatal shooting occurred about 3 a. m. at the home of Arthur Woods where the young mother of a 10-months-old daughter was "on a date with another man."

McIlroy said Reedy apparently had learned of the engagement and come to the house to get his wife. The coroner said Woods told him Reedy asked to see his wife, and that when she refused to come home with him, he shot her.
